PARTY GROWTH REPORTED -- Kommunist Tadzhikistana, No 254, 22 Dec 48

B. Gafurov, secretary of the TsK KP(b) Tadzhikistan, gave the main report of the Congress after the governing body had been elected on 20 December. He stated that during the war 17,024 persons entered the party, 7,247 as members of VKP(b) and 9,777 as candidates, or a total of 17,024. This growth continued in the postwar period with the addition of 6,533 members of VKP(b) and 6,289 candidates, in all 12,822.

However, there have been several serious shortcomings concerning acceptance into the party. Many persons admitted into the party were unprepared and immature politically. Growth of the party was weak in respect to the key industrial trades and agriculture. Educational work with those returning to the party was unsatisfactorily organized. Since the issuance of the directive by the TsK VKP(b) concerning admittance into the party, individual selection has become stricter.

The number of primary party organizations has increased 150 percent since 1940 and the number of Communists in them has increased 297 percent. Unfortunately, the principle of inner-party democracy is not observed in many rayons. During three quarters of 1948, 27 rayons, or 38 percent, had not fulfilled the regulation concerning the dates for conducting plenums. Many regional committees ineffectively supervise the primary party organizations, fail to control the activity of the administration, and make little effort to discover the weaknesses of the activities under their supervision.

Many party organs are unsatisfactory in respect to their political and organizational work in the masses.
